ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY

John Armstrong

- Beisner, E. Calvin. God in Three Persons. Wheaton, Illinois: Tyndale, 1984. A simple overview that traces the formulation of the doctrine and the controversies that arose among early Christians who sought to find the right language to adequately explain this truth.
- Bowman, Robert M. Why You Should Believe in the Trinity: An Answer to the Jehovah's Witnesses. Grand Rapids: Baker, 1989. A brief refutation of the claims of the Jehovah's Witnesses that the Trinity is an apostate doctrine.
- Boyd, Gregory A. Oneness Pentecostals & the Trinity. Grand Rapids: Baker, 1992. Boyd, now the leading proponent of "openness" theology, was once a Oneness Pentecostal. Here he explains why he left this movement and embraced historic doctrinal understanding. Oneness Pentecostalism is the largest anti-Trinitarian movement in the world.
- Bray, Gerald H. The Personal God: Is the Classical Understanding Tenable? Carlisle, Cumbria: Paternoster Press, 1998. A response to the "openness" proposal mentioned in the above comment.
- *Bray, Gerald H. The Doctrine of God. Downers Grove, Illinois: InterVarsity Press, 1993. This is one of several volumes in the extremely helpful series, Contours of Christian Theology. Answers questions related to how we should understand the personal, Trinitarian existence of God.

- Butin, Philip W. The Trinity. Louisville: The Geneva Press, 2001. This new title is part of a new series of books on theological issues for laypersons. Written in plain, understandable and readable language. A very useful book.
- Campbell, Ken. Our Awesome God: What Is our God Really Like? Inverness, Scotland: Christian Focus Publications, n.d. A basic book that could be used with profit by youth groups.
- Coffey, David. Deus Trinitas: The Doctrine of the Triune God. New York: Oxford University Press, 1999. Coffey, an Australian priest of the Roman Catholic Church considers the full range of issues related to the Trinity. This is an important academic work that interacts with serious contemporary philosophical arguments.
- *Erickson, Millard J. Making Sense of the Trinity. Grand Rapids: Baker, 2000. A popularly-written introduction to three crucial questions: Is the doctrine of the Trinity biblical? Does the doctrine make sense? What difference does the doctrine make? Erickson is clear, concise and helpful. Churches could profitably use this book for study groups.
- Erickson, Millard J. God the Father Almighty: A Contemporary Exploration of the Divine Attributes. Grand Rapids: Baker, 1998. Not limited to the doctrine of the Trinity alone, this is an important consideration of modern issues related to God, his existence, person, and nature.
- Fatula, Mary Ann. The Triune God of Christian Faith. Collegeville, Minnesota: The Liturgical Press, 1990. Part of a series designed for college students by a Roman Catholic publisher. Interacts with Rahner, Kasper, and William Hill.
- Feenstra, Ronald J. and Cornelius Plantinga, Jr., editors. Trinity, Incarnation and Atonement: Philosophical & Theo-

- logical Essays*. South Bend, Indiana: University of Notre Dame Press, 1989. Includes some excellent essays by the editors as well as Thomas Morris and Eleonore Stump. This is necessarily a highly technical work.
- Geisler, Norman L. Creating God in the Image of Man? Minneapolis: Bethany House Publishers, 1997. Geisler, a well-known apologist, provides serious warnings about the recent "openness" view of God.
- *Hanson, R. P. C. The Search for the Christian Doctrine of God. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1988. The classic survey of the Arian controversy between A.D. 318 and 381. This large work (931 pages) replaces the last full-scale work by Gwatkin published in 1882.
- Heinze, E. Charles. Trinity & Triunity: Salvation and the Nature of the Godhead. Dale City, Virginia: Epaphras Press, 1995. A soteriology that shows how Trinitarianism best explains salvation through a Reformed understanding of operations of grace.
- Heron, Alasdair I. C., editor. The Forgotten Trinity: The Report of the BCC Study Commission on Trinitarian Doctrine Today. London: The British Council of Churches, 1989. A report from the ecumenical study commission on the doctrine of the Trinity.
- Heron, Alasdair I. C., editor. The Forgotten Trinity: A Selection of Papers Presented to the BCC Study Commission on Trinitarian Doctrine Today, 1991. A companion to the previous volume, this one includes some good papers given by James Torrance, John Zizioulas, Alasdair Heron, Paul Fiddes and Colin Gunton.
- Hodgson, Leonard. The Doctrine of the Trinity. New York: Scribners, 1944. The Croall Lectures of 1942-43 given by the former Regius professor of divinity of Oxford, the canon of Christ Church. A good introduction to the subject from a serious scholar.

- Leupp, Rodney T. Knowing the Name of God: A Trinitarian Tapestry of Grace, Faith and Community. Downers Grove, Illinois: InterVarsity Press, 1996. A useful argument for the American scene which has lost interest in this "core" doctrine.
- Lowry, C. W. The Trinity and Christian Devotion. New York: Harper, 1946. A helpful out-of-print work by an Anglican who shows the reader how the doctrine should affect devotion and worship in the believer's life.
- Macleod, Donald. Behold Your God. Inverness, Scotland: Christian Focus Publications, 1990. A very well-written popular overview of the doctrine of God by a solid Scottish evangelical theologian.
- Macleod, Donald. Shared Life: The Trinity and the Fellowship of God's People. Inverness, Scotland: Christian Focus Publications, 1994. The doctrine of the Trinity should directly affect how we live. Macleod shows you how. Superb!
- Marsh, Thomas. The Triune God: A Biblical, Historical, and Theological Study. New York: Twenty-Third Publications, 1994. This work does what the title claims by providing a sound overview.
- *Marshall, Bruce D. Trinity and Truth. New York: Cambridge University Press, 2000. The decade of the 1990s gave us some of the most important academic works on the Trinity in one hundred years. This book heralds the good news that our new decade may yet yield more of the same. A very important work which is part of the Cambridge Studies in Christian Doctrine series.
- Meerson, Michael Aksionov. The Trinity of Love. Quincy, Illinois: Franciscan Press, 1998. A look at the emphasis on the Trinity in modern Russian theology with its - unique emphasis upon the love paradigm, so important to retrieving a renewal of Trinitarian theology.

- Mills, Robert P. Whom Alone We Worship and Serve. Lenoir, North Carolina: Presbyterian Lay Committee Publications, 1998. A brief and helpful overview of the doctrine of God designed with twelve chapters for study purposes.
- Nacef, Antoine E. The Mystery of the Trinity in the Theological Thought of Pope John Paul II. New York: Peter Lang, 1999. An important academic work that looks at the development of Trinitarian thought in the writings of the present pope.
- O'Collins, Gerald. The Tripersonal God: Understanding and Interpreting the Trinity. Mahwah, New Jersey: Paulist Press, 1999. The author draws on three areas: testimony to the tripersonal in Scripture, the development of Trinitarian doctrine from the second century and major Trinitarian issues facing the church today. Henry Chadwick calls this "a very mature book."
- Peters, Ted. God as Trinity: Rationality and Temporality in Divine Life. Louisville: Westminster/John Knox Press, 1993. Peters surveys the important thought of contemporaries such as Welch, Barth, Jüngel, Moltmann, Rahnner and Pannenberg. Handles difficult material with great clarity.
- Richardson, Cyril C. The Doctrine of the Trinity. Nashville: Abingdon Press, 1958. A basic and simple clarification of what the doctrine of the Trinity attempts to express. Written when few such works were being done in America.
- Ross, Bob L. The Trinity and the Eternal Sonship of Christ. Pasadena, Texas: Pilgrim Publications, 1993. A popularly-written and well-argued rebuttal of Oneness Pentecostalism.

- Rusch, William G., editor. The Trinitarian Controversy. Philadelphia: Fortress Press, 1980. A collection of important early church documents related to conflicts over the Trinity. Includes letters from Arius and Athanasius as well as fresh translations of work from Gregory of Nyssa, Gregory of Nazianzus and Augustine.
- Smail, Thomas A. The Forgotten Father. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1980. Smail, a British theologian who taught for a short time at Fuller Theological Seminary, suggests that in the modern era of the Holy Spirit the church has "forgotten" the Father. A wonderful book that shows how serious theology impacts the everyday life of the church.
- Thompson, John. Modern Trinitarian Perspectives. New York: Oxford University Press, 1994. The author, professor of systematic theology at Union Theological College, Belfast, was a student of the late Karl Barth. This work roots the Trinity in practical faith and life.
- *Toon, Peter. Our Triune God: A Biblical Portrayal of the Trinity. Wheaton, Illinois: Victor/Bridgepoint, 1996. An important book for lay and pastoral reader alike. Toon understands evangelicalism and writes to our most obvious needs theologically.
- Toon, Peter and James D. Spiceland, editors. One God in Trinity. Westchester, Illinois: Crossway, 1980. A collection of very helpful essays which analyze the principal dogma of historic Christianity by looking at subjects such as the Patristic dogma of the Trinity, the filioque clause, the thought of Karl Barth and the rise of modern Process Theology.
- *Torrance, Alan J. Persons in Communion: Trinitarian Description and Human Participation. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1996. An examination which seeks to balance Karl Barth's "revelation model" of the Trinity by seeing wor-

- ship as the true context for Trinitarian theology. Highly recommended academic work from an important Scottish theologian.
- *Torrance, Thomas F. The Trinitarian Faith: The Evangelical Theology of the Ancient Catholic Church. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1993. Torrance is perhaps the foremost modern theologian on this subject. All that he writes, including this work, tends to be dense for some readers but will always be well worth the effort.
- Torrance, Thomas F. Trinitarian Perspectives: Toward Doctrinal Agreement. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1994. An attempt to show how and why we can reach consensus by beginning doctrinal renewal with the Trinity. The goal is to show how fruitful discussion upon this doctrine can directly impact ecumenical dialogue.
- *Torrance, Thomas F. The Christian Doctrine of God: One Being, Three Persons. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1996. The newest of Torrance's three volumes on the Trinity, this will surely be a classic academic work for some time. Highly recommended.
- Schwobel, Christoph, editor. Trinitarian Theology Today: Essays on Divine Being and Art. Edinburgh: T & T Clark, 1995. A small work that is provocative and insightful.
- *Vanhoozer, Kevin J., editor. The Trinity in a Pluralistic Age. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1997. Includes essays by some of the most important evangelical theological voices in our time: Kevin Vanhoozer, Gerald Bray, Lesslie Newbigin, Colin Gunton, Henri Blocher, Trevor Hart, Gary Badcock, and Richard Bauckham. This is an immensely important book.
- Wainwright, Arthur A. The Trinity in the New Testament. London: S.P.C.K., 1962. The Trinity clearly arises out of the New Testament and its implications were worked out in the early church. Wainwright shows how this was done.

White, James R. The Forgotten Trinity: Recovering the Heart of Christian Belief. Minneapolis, Minnesota: Bethany House Publishers, 1998. The author has an ability to say important and complex things in readable ways. A good overview for laypersons.

*Highly recommended
